Abstract

System and method for establishing a remote connection over a network with a personal security device connected to a local client without using a local APDU interface or local cryptography.